THINK PINK

It's hard not to be tickled pink over all the fabulous products that pledge to support breast cancer research. To show how much you care, purchase one of these purpose-driven products, either for yourself or as a gift.

<< CleanWell All Natural Hand Sanitizer.

CleanWell is partnering with Cancer101 (C101) to empower Breast Cancer patients and their caregivers. During October, purchase a 6 oz. bottle and 50% of the proceeds will be donated to C101; $6.99 at CleanWellToday.com.

<< Ole Henriksen African Red Tea Foaming Cleanser.

Twenty-five percent of its sales will go to the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation to help fund programs for prevention, support and research. The cleanser is enriched with anti-aging botanical extracts and contains African Red Tea and Ester C. It's ideal for regular use and helps skin become clearer and more luminous; $30 at olehenriksen.com.

<< Kimara Ahnert Pucker Pink Ribbon Lipstick.

Fifteen percent of the proceeds from every tube of this new shade will be donated to the Libby Ross Foundation to help fund programs for prevention, support and research; $24 at kimara.com.

color confusion be gone!

Choosing a haircolor for at-home use can be tricky. In the typical scenario, you spend half an hour or more perusing product boxes, only to bring one home and discover the hue is all wrong for you!

Now, EZface Virtual Hair

Coloration In-Store Kiosks have developed a system that takes the guesswork out of selecting a shade. Using state-of-the-art technology, the machine snaps a photo of your face, analyzes your skin tone, facial features and current haircolor, then helps you pick a shade from in-store brands that will work for you. It even shows you how each color will look, right on your photo!

EZface already has Virtual Make-Up Kiosks operating at Walmart stores across the country; the Color Kiosks will be making their U.S. debut in 2011.

FALL FOR SLEEKNESS AND SHINE

According to Marc Anthony, owner of namesake salons in Toronto and creator of Marc Anthony True Professional's line of hair products, super-full strands are being put on hold this fall in favor of sleek, polished looks. Here's how to achieve a solid blowout, which is the style's foundation:

➤ Shampoo and condition with Style Straight Unwind Shampoo and Frizz Away Conditioner, then apply Blow Straight Potion.

➤ Section hair and blow-dry with tension using a paddle brush. "You want to almost iron hair in a downward motion," says Anthony.

➤ When hair is dry, spray Style Straight Iron Shine Flat Iron Spray evenly onto locks as you flat-iron large sections. Concentrate on the top to the jawline—you'll want to add smoothness mostly near the crown, keeping the ends slightly un-finished for a more modern feel.

➤ Finish with a few drops of Moisture Gloss Daily Drops.

As for the cut, don't make it overly blunt, or it will look dated. Instead, opt for layers (but not too many) and a broken-up line to keep it fresh. "Hair should have a bit of a grown-out feeling," Anthony explains.

HOW TO GET OUR COVER LOOK

Want to score our cover style? Here's how, courtesy of its creator, Sherri Long of Mouton Salon (moutonsalon.com) in Grapevine, TX.

THE COLOR: Model Jill—a Mouton Salon customer—is a natural strawberry blonde. To enhance her shade and add depth, they went a little darker with Wella Professional color.

THE CUT: Because Jill has fairly thin hair, Long graduated the nape to add fullness and lift. From the ears back, uniform layers were added and from the ears forward, the first section was shifted behind the ear, then it was increased as Long moved forward.

TO STYLE: Kérastase Volumactive Spray was misted onto damp hair, then Kérastase Nectar Thermique was put on the ends for heat-styling protection. Hair was finger-styled upside down, then misted with Bumble and bumble Does It All Spray. Since Jill's hair is bone-straight, sections were wound around a one-inch curling iron and each curl was clipped while hot to further set the shape. When the curls cooled, they were unclipped and hair was gently finger-placed to taste. If your hair is naturally curly, you could get this look with simple scrunch-styling.
